The Made In Michigan Writers Series is thrilled to present "When Our Fathers Return To Us As Birds," a complex and moving exploration of family, loss, and the power of storytelling by award-winning author Leo Wolpert.

A Story of Loss, Healing, and the Power of Memory

Set in the beautiful and haunting landscape of Michigan's Upper Peninsula, "When Our Fathers Return To Us As Birds" tells the story of a young woman named Anya who must confront her father's death and the secrets he left behind. As she delves into her father's past, she discovers a hidden world of love, loss, and redemption.

Wolpert's lyrical prose and deeply felt characters bring Anya's journey to life with stunning clarity. Anya's struggle to reconcile her grief with the memories of her father is both heartbreaking and ultimately hopeful. Through her journey, she learns that even in the face of loss, love and connection can endure.

Exploring Complex Themes

In addition to its moving portrayal of grief and loss, "When Our Fathers Return To Us As Birds" also explores complex themes of family, identity, and the nature of memory. Wolpert deftly weaves these themes into the narrative, creating a rich and thought-provoking work that will stay with readers long after they finish reading.

The novel also offers a unique perspective on the immigrant experience. Anya's father is a Polish immigrant who came to the United States in search of a better life. Through his story, Wolpert explores the challenges and joys of living in a new country and the ways in which our past and present are intertwined.
