"You'll Be in My Heart" was written by Phil Collins and his longtime collaborator David Crosby. The song was inspired by the film Tarzan, which tells the story of a young orphaned boy who is raised by gorillas in the African jungle.

Collins has said that he was particularly moved by the film's themes of family and love. He wanted to write a song that would capture the essence of these themes and that would resonate with audiences of all ages.

The song was a huge success upon its release, reaching number one on the Billboard Hot 100 chart and winning an Academy Award for Best Original Song. It has since become one of Collins' most popular and enduring songs.

The pop version of "You'll Be in My Heart" is written in the key of C major. It has a tempo of 76 beats per minute and a 4/4 time signature.

The song is divided into three main sections: the verse, the chorus, and the bridge. The verse is a gentle and introspective section that introduces the song's main theme. The chorus is a more powerful and uplifting section that expresses the song's message of love and family. The bridge is a contrasting section that provides a moment of reflection and introspection.

The song concludes with a powerful and emotional outro that brings the song to a close.
